[August 2025]

The School+Family Alliance Consortium is collaborating on the development of the School+Family Alliance Paradigm, an innovative framework designed to revolutionize the role of parents in supporting educational inclusion and reducing early school dropout across Europe. The School+Family Alliance Paradigm will serve as a guide for policymakers, educators, and other key stakeholders, providing a set of principles, illustrated with real-world examples of best practices, to better engage parents in supporting their children's educational success.

The paradigm is not just a theoretical framework—it is an actionable roadmap that will ensure the sustainability and scalability of the School+Family Alliance project's results.

The goals of the School+Family Alliance Paradigm include:

Mainstreaming Parental Engagement: Offering a robust framework for integrating parental involvement strategies into schools' daily routines and long-term policies.

Guidelines for Policy Makers and Educators: Empowering stakeholders with a comprehensive set of tools and good practices to enhance educational inclusion, specially for disadvantaged students.

A Sustainable, Scalable Approach: Providing methods and examples for adapting and replicating successful strategies across a wide range of schools, ensuring the project's impact can be scaled throughout Europe.
